Dimensions of Marble is a nonprofit organization whose mission is to define and honor the legacy of Vermont Marble. The program was conceived and founded in 2005 by a group of Vermont citizens who believed the story of marble, its history, its artistry, and the people who worked in the marble industry should be documented and shared with all Vermonters, as well as national and international audiences. Dimensions of Marble consists of six distinct projects planned for release at times from 2008 - 2011. This brochure documenting the Vermont Marble Trail is the first of several projects that are being produced by the organization.

Five Dimensions of Marble projects in the works!

PROJECT: The Cultural Heritage Wall

Marble workers of the past and present will be honored on Heritage Walls, crafted from Vermont marble and installed in Proctor, West Rutland and other Vermont towns along the Marble Trail.

PROJECT: Cultural Heritage DVD

This project is a production of a short DVD designed to pique people's interest in the history and uses of marble, inspiring them to explore the Marble Trail tour.

PROJECT: The International Stone Symposium

The symposium is a three-phase sculpture program to be held throughout 2008 - 2010. It is a collaborative effort between the Carving Studio in West Rutland, VT, and Sias International University in Henan Province, China, and culminates with the International Sculpture Symposium planned for Vermont in 2010.

PROJECT: Educational Lending Kit

The kit is a set of grade-specific educational plans, hands-on learning materials, and background resource materials professionally packaged and shared among classrooms throughout Vermont.

PROJECT: Documentary Film

This film is a one-hour documentary exploring the history of marble quarries, the carvers who created lasting monuments and the cultural contributions of those immigrants who came to work in the marble industry.
